Proud Member Agency

The Helping Hands Food Pantry of Roseville exists to improve quality of life for Warren County residents by providing assistance to families in need and by developing programs to strengthen families and individuals.

In our last newsletter the announcement was made that Helping Hands of Roseville is now a Warren County United Way Agency.

What does it mean to be a WARREN COUNTY UNITED WAY AGENCY?

Cyndy Hunter, Helping Hands Board Member, writes: "Most of you know United Way as a group that runs the annual drive to raise funds for charity. The United Way realizes that there are many people willing to help others who are in need. The United Way collects money from ordinary, generous people so that local charitable agencies can use those funds to serve a variety of needs. 100% of the local campaign contributions go to the local member agencies in Warren County. Helping Hands this year applied and was accepted to become a United Way member agency. Next year, some of your United Way donations will enable Helping Hands to continue to provide food to the hungry people of Warren County. We thank all of you who donate to United Way and we thank United Way for accepting Helping Hands as a new member agency."
